Baltimore Erupts in Riots After Funeral of Black Man Who Died in Police Custody

(Reuters) Baltimore erupted in violence on Monday as hundreds of rioters looted stores, burned buildings and at least 15 police officers were injured following the funeral of a 25-year-old black man who died after suffering a spinal injury in police custody. The riots broke out blocks from where the funeral of Freddie Gray took place and spread through much of west Baltimore. It was the most violent protest against police treatment of African Americans since arson and gunfire in Ferguson, Missouri, last year. A state of emergency was declared by Maryland Governor Larry Hogan, a Republican, who sent in the National Guard, and a curfew was imposed in the majority black city from Tuesday night, with exceptions for work and medical emergencies. Firefighters battled numerous blazes through Monday night, including one that consumed a church's senior center under construction in East Baltimore. Police said looting, fires and attacks against officers continued overnight. Democratic Mayor Stephanie Rawlings-Blake called the looters "thugs" and said they had nothing to do with protests. Police made at least 27 arrests and Baltimore schools will be shut Tuesday.

Significant Events – International

Japanese Police Investigate Projectile Launch Near US Base

(AP) Japanese police said they were investigating a possible attack on a U.S. Army base near Tokyo after finding a pair of launchers and a projectile Tuesday following reports of explosions in the vicinity. Two iron pipes planted into the ground and aimed at Camp Zama were found about 800 meters (half a mile) southwest of the base, which sits near a residential area and an elementary school, police said. No injuries or damage were immediately reported from the incident. Police found the pipes after a resident reported hearing three explosions in the area in the early hours of Tuesday. Investigators later found a projectile at another field nearby that was believed to have been fired at the base from one of the launchers. Police said they were investigating the incident.

Nine Await Mass Execution in Indonesia, as Foreign Hopes for Reprieve Fade

(Reuters) Nine drug traffickers met their families for what could be the final time at an Indonesian maximum security prison on Tuesday, after Jakarta rejected international pleas for clemency and ordered their mass execution to proceed, possibly within hours. The death penalties imposed on eight foreigners and an Indonesian have been condemned by the United Nations, and strained ties between neighbors Australia and Indonesia. Security at the prison was heightened and religious counselors, doctors and the firing squad were alerted to start final preparations for the execution of the four Nigerians, two Australians, an Indonesian, a Brazilian and a Filipina. Indonesian authorities have declined to specify a time for the executions, due to take place at a nearby clearing in a forest.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A trough moving over the West Coast will bring some high clouds and cooler temperatures across the interior today. However, dry conditions will persist the rest of the week. Interior temperatures will trend upward beginning Thursday as high pressure dominates the weather pattern.

Medford Weather:

The forecast area will be dry and very warm with breezy/slightly stronger than normal afternoon and evening winds through at least the weekend. The only exception will be a slight chance to chance of light showers today into tonight as a weak cold front moves east to northeast across the region.

Reno Weather:

Temperatures will remain above normal this week with the warmest readings today and Wednesday. A weak trough will develop near the West Coast for the end of the week with shower and thunderstorm potential increasing each day through the weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

Look for cooler temperatures today and tomorrow due to a deeper marine layer plus a moderate onshore flow. Temperatures will rebound for Thursday and Friday to well above normal.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

High pressure will bring mainly dry weather and above normal temperatures to the area through the week. Isolated thunderstorms are possible near the crest of the Sierra Thursday and Friday for south of Lake Tahoe. Continued warm temperatures expected this weekend with thunderstorms possible over all the mountains in the forecast area.

Hanford Weather:

Dry weather and above normal afternoon temperatures can be expected over the central California interior through the end of the week. Isolated thunderstorms will be possible over the Sierra for the weekend.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A very gradual cooling trend is expected through Thursday as high pressure aloft weakens and the sea breeze strengthens. For Friday through the weekend, more significant cooling is expected along with widespread low clouds and fog as weak low pressure impacts the area.

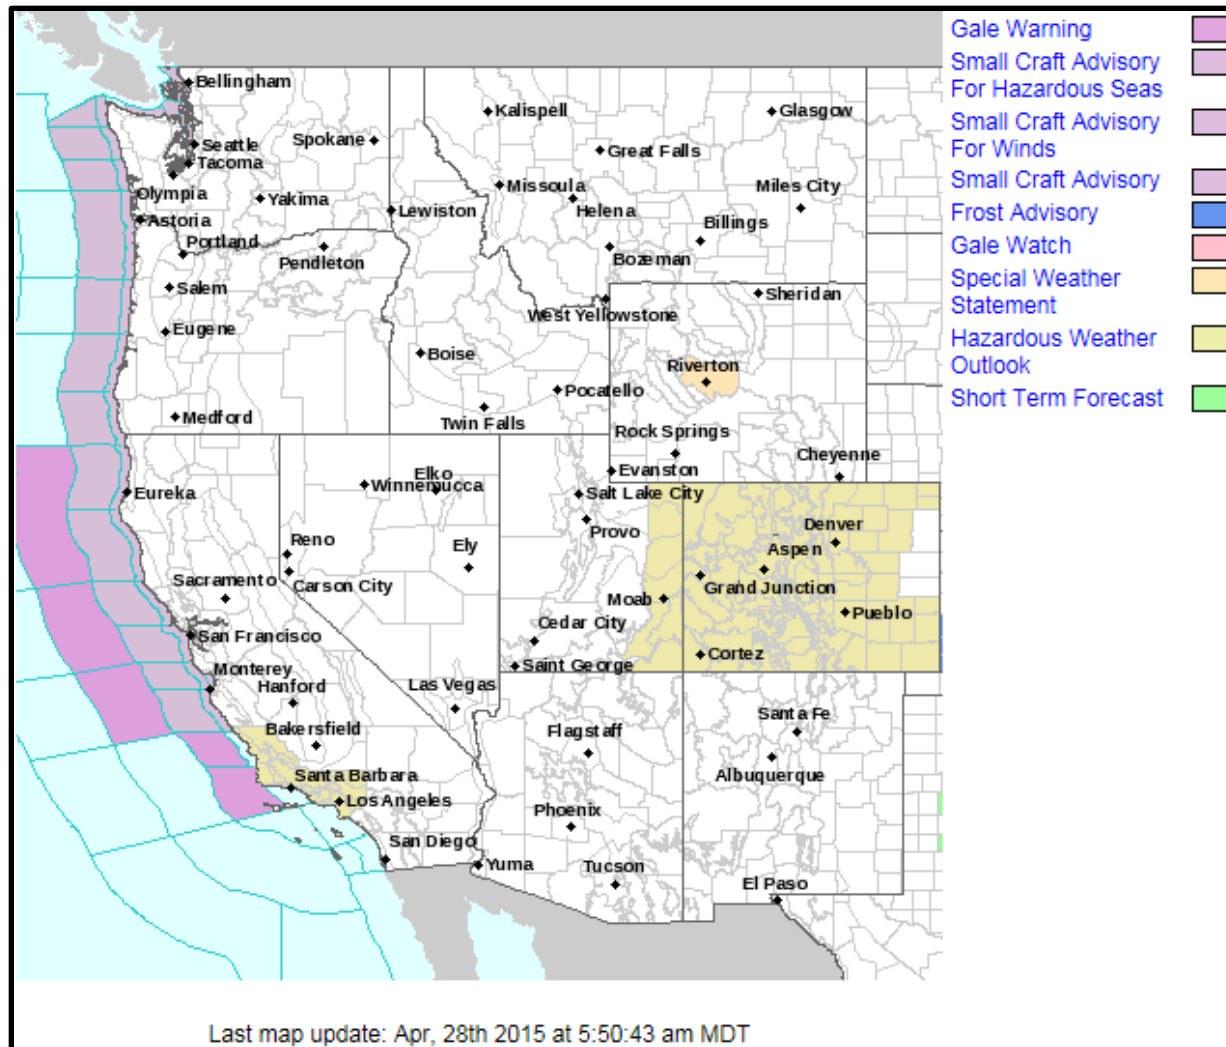

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

High pressure will keep the weather warm and dry much of the week. Afternoon sea breezes will keep the days more moderate along the coast, but temperatures will still be well above average. The onshore flow will increase later in the week building the marine layer and associated coastal clouds, fog, and cooler days.

Southeast California Weather:

Dry weather with a significant warming trend will rapidly take place this week, with temperatures across the lower deserts approaching the 100 degree mark during the latter part of the week. For late this weekend into next week, the weather pattern is expected to shift again with temperatures returning back to near normal.
